Near center of section of Robert L. Merz farm, old coal mine, years ago (abandoned) reported 90' to coal; 66" coal thickness or thereabouts; somewhat in doubt about the thickness of coal, but several know that coal was mined for threshermen and farmers; reported by Perry Fellers, whose father formerly owned this farm when the mine was sunk; by Charles Foster a neighbor; Tony Kramer reports that he found on the ground nearby the old mine shaft black slate usually found on top of coal - also lime rock, recently, or a few month ago.
